T Furtado, R Sullivan

Chapter 8. Behaviour change

Overview

Understanding human behaviours around prescribing, management, uptake of monitoring tools and anthelmintic use is important when trying to effect behaviour change towards sustainable strategies for parasite control. While education is important in promoting responsible use, to effect behaviour change, the practical barriers for equid owners to engage with responsible anthelmintic use must also be considered.